View on the vineyards from the hillside

Arrival in Sierre, Salgesch and surroundings

The region of Sierre, Salgesch and the surrounding area is located on the right bank of the river Rhône, enjoying an exceptional amount of sunshine, it is commonly nicknamed "Cité du Soleil" or "Sierre l'agréable". The abundance of vineyards and the exceptional bouquet of its wines is explained by the combination of alluvial soil and generous sunshine. European œnologists have come to consider Valais as an authentic conservatory in matters of viticulture.

Discoveries and suggestions

The vineyard trail (6km), accessible all year, is a discovery tour, punctuated with explanatory signs boards. It links the two sites of the Valaisan Museum of wine and the vine, which is the museum attached to the Château de Villa in Sierre dedicated to wine and its cultural aspects, and the Maison Zumofen in Salgesch dedicated to the vine and to the work of the winemaker.

The Château de Villa œnothèque is the preferred spot for all wine lovers. Here you can discover, in a convivial and exclusive setting, a choice of more than 500 of the best crus produced by 70 cellars from all over Valais, some rare bottles of old vintages and schnapps made from fruit from the Valais orchards.

SIERRE/SALGESCH TO ST-LUC

From Sierre you have two possibilities:

- 1 Sierre → Les Pontis, area known as “Fribougxe” (by bus) then St-Luc via Chandolin on foot
- 2 Sierre → Finges (on foot or by bus) then St-Luc via Chandolin on foot via the chapelle de St-Antoine

1 Sierre → Les Pontis by bus, then St-Luc via Chandolin on foot

🕒 about a 5 hour walk

From Sierre station (542 m), the bus takes you up the Val d’Anniviers road. After a few hairpin bends and then passing into the valley’s gorges, you get off the bus at the Pontis bus stop, in the area known as “Fribougxe” (1001 m) 1. After an hour’s hike 1 hour up a steepish slope you discover a little corner of paradise, Soussillon (1388m) 2. The climb continues for about another 30 minutes until you reach Chandolin from below (about 1 ½ hours) or get to the Ponchet pasture (1950 m and about 2 hours) 3.

If you decide to go by Ponchet the route is pretty wild and holds some nice surprises (fauna and flora). Please note that this is only recommended for good hikers. From Ponchet a wide forest road leads you towards Chandolin (about 1 ½ hours). Don’t miss the look-out point over l’Illgraben, an erosion site which is unique in Europe. It is said that it is the most beautiful and immense amphitheatre of rock resulting from the collapse of the mountain due to erosion.

From Chandolin (2000 m) 4, two suggestions of routes to reach St-Luc (1655 m) 5 :

- Either from below, crossing the village of Chandolin, then the spots know as La Toueille and Lebing (about 1 ½ hours)
- Or by the high route, following the trail of the Sierre-Zinal race which leads you through the cool of the pine forest towards Tignousa, top of the funicular (2186 m and 1 ¼ hours). Here we recommend you take the funicular which will take you down to St-Luc (1655 m) in 7 minutes, but if you prefer you can also reach St-Luc on foot by the walking trail (about 1 ½ hours) or down the ski piste (about 1 hour).

2 Sierre → Finges then St-Luc via Chandolin on foot via the chapelle de St-Antoine 🕒 about 6 ½ hour walk

To get to Finges or creux de Chippis (565 m), you can take the Postbus or get there on foot (about an hour from the station). The path starts about 100 m after the roundabout where you turn up the Val d’Anniviers road, follow Chapelle de St-Antoine. The steep and winding trail follows the Stations of the Cross leading you to the Chapelle de St-Antoine (989 m and about 45 mins.) Don’t forget to ring the bell here, it will bring you good luck! The climb continues towards Plan Palet (1146 m and about 45 mins.) then towards la forêt du Couquelle. The climb is pretty tough, but rich in surprises. You might even come across a deer or chamois!! After about 2 hours you reach the Ponchet pasture (1950 m) 3, an open window on the Val d’Anniviers. From Ponchet a wide forest road leads you towards Chandolin (about 1 ½ hours) 4. Don’t miss the look-out point over l’Illgraben, an erosion site which is unique in Europe. It is said that it is the most beautiful and immense amphitheatre of rock resulting from the collapse of the mountain due to erosion. From Chandolin, see the previous stage.

Saturn on the planetary footpath

ST-LUC TO ZINAL 🕒 about 5 ½ hours

From St-Luc, we recommend you head up to Tignousa (2186 m) 1 on the funicular. From there, there is a splendid view of the Imperial crown, including, amongst others, the Matterhorn and the Dent Blanche. The OFXB observatory offers visits which allow you to observe the sun. The Hotel Weisshorn, on the first leg of this hike, is also a wonderful view point. To get to it, the solar system represented on the Planetary Trail is a fun way to lead you there.

Heavenly bodies apart, you pass by the Rouaz pasture (Chalet Blanc 2179 m and 20 minutes) 2 where Saturn and its rings take cover. At Chiesso (2201 m and 30 mins.) the climb starts up to the Hotel Weisshorn.

After about 30 minutes you reach the 19th century English style hotel (2337 m) 3. If you enjoy your food, don't miss the famous "tarte aux myrtilles". The outer space voyage continues towards the last planet in the solar system, Pluto. Don't miss it, after about 20 minutes walk, at the foot of the path 4.

This agreeable walk continues towards Bella Lé and then onto the Barneuza pastures (2211 m and 1 hour) 5. The landscapes begin to change and the descent to Zinal is just around the corner. Reckon on 45 minutes of very steep descent from the heights of Zinal 6.

Glacier, lake and dam of Moiry

ZINAL TO GRIMENTZ 🕒 about 5 hours

For this 3rd stage, we recommend that you use the cable-car which will take you straight up to Sorebois. If you prefer to walk, follow the river Navizence (1653 m) for 15 minutes then take the winding track which leads you to Sorebois via the Fête d’Août (2257 m and 2 hours). At Sorebois (2438 m) 1 the pass is about a 1 hour 20 minute hike up and across the high mountain pastures. You may well have the chance to spot a few marmottes which are prevalent in this area. When you reach the col de Sorebois (2835 m) 2, your eyes will light up at the dramatic view down onto the Moiry dam and its Caribbean blue waters rippling at 2250 m above the ocean. The walk down to the lake takes about 1 hour. Cross the impressive wall of the dam (2250 m) 3 to reach the path that will lead you towards Grimentz (1564 m and 1 hour 40 mins) following the Gougra stream 4. This section is also used by the courageous mountain bikers of the Grand Raid (Verbier-Grimentz) race every year in mid-August.

After 45 minutes, in the area known as “Le Chèquet” 2, follow the signs to the alpage d’Orzival. The path leads you through a fragrant larch forest then opens up onto the Orzival pasture (2100 m.). At this point you have two possibilities:

- either hike up towards La Brinta (2601 m and 1 ½ hours) then continue along the ridge in the direction of Crêt du Midi (2331 m and 45 minutes) then go down by gondola or on foot to Vercorin (1342 m and about 2 ¼ hours)

VERCORIN AND SURROUNDING AREA

Vallon de Réchy and lac du Louché ⌚ about 7 hours

To discover the natural reserve of the Vallon de Réchy, we recommend you use the mountain lifts to get to the Crêt du Midi (2331 m) 1, the ideal departure point for this hike, rich in things to discover. There are two ways to get to l'Ar du Tsan (2200 m):

- by the high route through a fresh and humid forest (about 1 hour 40 mins)
- or by following the forest trail (about 1 hour 40 mins).

Once at l'Ar du Tsan 2, the view over the Rhône valley is magnificent. This plateau also has a strange particularity: the meanders which sculpt the marshland with amber colours and winding patterns.

From this point the lac du Louché at 2567 m 3 is about 1 ½ hours. Along this delightful walk you can discover a wealth of rare flora, like for example, the Linegrettes, small flowers with cotton pompoms which grow in puddles. On the way back, you can follow the path on the other side via the Gouille de Potoc (2468 m) and la Fâche which gives you a commanding view down over l'Ar du Tsan (about 1 ¼ hours). To get back to Vercorin, a steep path which follows the waterfall leads you to the refuge du bisse (1643 m 1 hour) 4. From there, you just have to follow the bisse (old irrigation stream) which guides you to Vercorin (1320 m and 1 ½ hours) 5.

Refuge du Bisse ⌚ about 4 hours round trip

From Vercorin (1320 m), a small escape to the Vallon de Réchy will give you the opportunity to discover the bisse de Vercorin and eventually the Refuge du Bisse (1643 m) with a magnificent panorama over the Rhône valley and an impressive view of the waterfall which falls 400 m from higher up on l'Ar du Tsan. To return to Sierre, we recommend you use the post car as the path leading down is very steep.
