Lucerne
Historic buildings and century-old landmarks like the Chapel Bridge, the Lion Monument or the medieval city ramparts wait to be discovered on foot. Enjoy the contrast of old and new Lucerne, with such contemporary buildings as the KKL framing the waterfront. Countless shops and refined restaurants lend to the city’s exciting vibe.

Lucerne – Weggis
As soon as you have set sail from the city, you will find yourself surrounded by magnificent mountains and breathtaking views. On a warm day, the ambiance is quite Mediterranean. Let the tranquility of the lake enchant you, as you gently glide over the water, passing the picturesque shoreline.

Weggis
Weggis is a popular summer resort, known for its mild climate, lush gardens and majestic chestnut trees. In 1897, the well-known American writer Mark Twain lived in Weggis for several months. He thought very highly of the town, describing it with the following words: «This is the most charming place we have ever lived in for repose and restfulness».

Weggis – Vitznau
To the left you will notice Mount Rigi. From the summit at 1800 m you can see all of Central Switzerland as well as Southern Germany. You may reach the top either by aerial cableway from Weggis or by rack railway from Vitznau. To the right you will notice the impressive Bürgenstock, with its steep cliffs and the unique Hammetschwand elevator, an engineering landmark dating from 1905.

Vitznau
In 1871, Europe’s first rack railway opened, leading from Vitznau to Rigi Kulm. With some luck, you just might see one of the two operational steam locomotives standing on the turntable at Vitznau station.

Vitznau – Beckenried – Gersau
Between these ports of call, you will pass through the narrowest point of Lake Lucerne, known as the «Nas». Here the foothills of Mount Rigi and the Bürgenstock create a tight frame. Other magnificent mountains that will now come into your sight are the Stanserhorn, the Buochserhorn and Brisen, with the hiking and skiing paradise Klewenalp/Stockhütte. From Beckenried to Gersau, the lake is at its widest (3.3 km), while also at its deepest (214 m). The full length from Lucerne to Flüelen measures 38 km, while the whole lake has a footprint of 114 km².

Gersau
From 1390 to 1816 Gersau was an independent republic. In 1817, the Congress of Vienna allocated it to Canton Schwyz. The proud locals still cherish their autonomous history though.

Treib
Before arriving at the quaint pier of Treib, you will notice the pretty peaks of Oberbauen and Niederbauen. In Treib, the wooden boat house is famous for its black and yellow window shutters in the heraldic colors of Canton Uri. The building can trace its origins to 1282 and takes an important place in Swiss history.

Brunnen
On to Brunnen then! This pretty resort town is dwarfed by the two Mythen mountains, which tower at 1’811 m and 1’898 m respectively. With a year-round population of 7’000, Brunnen is one of the largest towns along Lake Lucerne.

Rüti
On the sail from Brunnen to the mythic Rüti meadow, you will notice the 30 m high Schillerstein. This jagged rock has an inscription that is dedicated to the German poet Friedrich Schiller (the author of «Wilhelm Tell»). The natural monument was inscribed in 1859, 100 years after the bard’s birthday. The Rüti meadow is known as the cradle of Switzerland and it is here that in 1291 the Swiss Confederation was established as an alliance between the three cantons of Uri, Schwyz and Unterwalden.

Lake Uri
At Tellisplatten you will notice the little chapel dedicated to Wilhelm Tell, the Swiss national hero. According to the legend, it was at this site that Tell escaped from the clutches of the tyrant Gessler and secured his freedom. On the other side of the lake, we will pass through Bauen, the smallest village in Canton Uri. Until 1956, Bauen was actually without any road access.

Flüelen
In Flüelen you will notice how the River Reuss flows into the lake. The strong current prevents the lake from freezing over in winter. Flüelen boasts an excellent boat-to-train interchange and lies on the major Gotthard north-south route. In 2016, the new Gotthard Base Tunnel will open for railway traffic. With a length of 57 km, this is now the longest train tunnel in the world.
